Last Week for Bright Futures

The state's most lucrative source of higher education funding awards scholarships from full to partial tuition to deserving students. There is one caveat, however: ALL community service hours must be entered by the graduation date of May 19. Awards are made in late summer but hours cannot be submitted past May 19. The awards, in addition to academic requirements, require 100 community service hours for the Academic Scholars award, 75 hours for the Medallion Scholars award and 30 hours for the Gold Seal Vocational Scholars award. Please see Joe Landes in the administration offices to log service offers. All hours must be submitted to him to be listed on a student transcript. Stop by the Career Center in 6-204 to check the status of your Bright Futures application or to apply.

Learn Coding, Earn Money

The University of South Florida is sponsoring a workshop for young women June 23. The workshop, sponsored by the National Center for Women and Information technology, Microsoft and USFSM will teach girls in grades 9 and 10 the coding basics. A stipend will be paid upon completion of the class.

Scholarships Abound at 2018 Senior Awards Night

From excellence in math to donating many pints of blood, there were many reasons to celebrate seniors at the annual Senior Awards night. More than 75 awards were presented by businesses, foundations, clubs and academic institutions during a ceremony in the RPAC.

The inaugural Rocky Aker Scholarship was presented to Anton Kernohan, left, for his outstanding community service, academic excellence and future plans for a medical career. The award was established by Aker's classmates as a memorial to their friend, a local chiropractor who was killed in an automobile crash. Kernohan also garnered a scholarship from the Community Foundation.

Marisa Messenger, center, who just earned her early childhood certificate at RHS, won numerous scholarships to assist her with her goal of becoming a classroom teacher. She earned the DKG Beta Upsilon scholarship, the Lions Club scholarship and the Ronald Frymire Memorial Scholarship.

Student athlete Aliyah Cunningham, right, won the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Scholarship, the Beattie Family Scholarship, the Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award and the Manasota Track Club scholarship.

The annual event is produced by the RHS Guidance Department. Kayla Escobar, Key Club president, served as mistress of ceremonies for the evening.
